WHAT IS DECENTRALIZED FINANCE (DEFI)?

Decentralized Finance (or DeFi for short) refers to an ecosystem of financial applications built on top of blockchain networks.

More specifically, the term Decentralized Finance can mean a movement aimed at creating open-source, license-free, transparent financial services that are available to everyone and operate without centralized authority. Users will have complete control over their assets and interact with the ecosystem through peer-to-peer (P2P) decentralized applications (dapps).

What is the difference between DeFi and Open Banking?

Open banking is a banking system where third party financial service providers are given secure access to financial data via APIs. This allows for linkages of accounts and data between banks and non-bank financial institutions. In essence, it allows for new types of products and services within the traditional financial system.

What is the Binance Smart Chain?

The Binance Smart Chain (BSC) is perhaps best described as a blockchain running in parallel with the Binance Chain. Unlike Binance Chain, BSC offers smart contract functionality and compatibility with the Ethereum Virtual Machine (EVM). Its design goal is to keep the high throughput of the Binance Chain as is, while introducing smart contracts into its ecosystem.
